Fort Townsend - Sir John Harvey Monument
Named for or location:  Located on Harvey Road, Bonaventure Avenue intersection at Fort Townshend. Designated as a National Historic site in 1953.
Fort Townsend (Townshend)

Named for or location: Name used for the area situated at the top of the land dividing St. John's from the Freshwater Valley at the height of three hundred feet above sea level, it commands the Harbour and entrance. The building was started in 1771 and finished in 1779. This was the location of the Newfoundland Constabulary that was formed in 1871 with the withdrawal of the last of the British garrison and remains to date.

In 1809, the governor of Newfoundland took up residence at this location and had his apartment in a building along the east wall of the fort. There was also a detached kitchen and a stable adjacent for the governor's use. Governor Pickmore was the first governor to winter in Newfoundland and died here due to inadequate shelter. This lead to the building of the present day Government House for Governor Thomas Cochrane, which started in 1825 and finished in 1828.

Padre Nangle Place
Named by Council: May 1, 2006
Named for or location: Street Named after World War I Catholic Priest

The City of St. John’s will be recognizing a former Catholic priest of the Archdiocese of St. John’s by naming a street in his honour. The City of St. John’s, Nomenclature Committee met on April 13 and agreed to name a cul de sac off Hunt's Lane, Padre Nangle Place.

Honouring Lt. Col. Padre Thomas Nangle, of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment was a proposal first made to the city in February by Gary F. Browne, Chairman of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment Advisory Council. Mr. Browne and Darrin McGrath, a researcher and writer, are in the process of researching a book on Padre Nangle that will be ready for publication by the end of the year (2006). The designation, Padre Nangle Place, was formally approved by the City of St. John’s on May 1, 2006.

The Reverend Mr. Nangle was ordained to the Order of Priest in the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist, St. John’s, by The Most Reverend Michael F. Howley, on June 29, 1913. From 1913-1914, he did priestly pastoral ministry first in St. Thomas of Villa Nova Parish, Topsail, then in the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist Parish, St. John's, then in St. Michael's Parish, Bell Island, and from there to St. Patrick's Parish, St. John’s, from 1914-1915. With the permission of Archbishop Howley he enlisted in the British Military Forces in 1915 as Chaplain, and became padre to the Newfoundland Regiment in France. At the end of the War in 1918, he returned to Newfoundland and was appointed curate in St. Michael’s

Parish, Bell Island where he laboured for four months.
Around that time the Imperial Government of Great Britain set up a Commission to deal with governments of countries in which British and Imperial troops had been killed and buried. Its responsibilities included relocation of graves, maintenance of cemeteries, and erection of monuments. Newfoundland’s representative on the Commission was Lt-Col. Thomas Nangle, who was also appointed Director of Graves, whose responsibility it was to handle registration and enquiries. As well he negotiated with some two hundred fifty French landowners for the purchase of the land for the Memorial Park at ‘Beaumont Hamel’.
Father Nangle also had a leading part in "planning and supervising the erection of all the Newfoundland battle memorials, and the selection and development of the parks in which they stood," which included having a role in the erection of the War Memorial at St. John’s.
Father Nangle in 1926 moved to Rhodesia, later he resigned from the priesthood. In 1930 he married. He farmed in Rhodesia and became a successful Reform Party politician in Salisbury, Rhodesia. In 1933 he was elected to the Rhodesian parliament.

Note: October 2, 2009. The development off Hunt's Lane has not proceeded. Name going back into reserve list.

Prince William Place
Named by Council: September 22, 1949
Named for or location: It was initially believed that it was named for Prince William Henry of England who visited St. John's in 1786. It is said he visited and danced at Allan Dale (Allandale) house. However, later evidence concluded that Allandale house was not built until circa 1830. It was later realized that it was Prince Henry of the Netherlands who visited Allandale House in 1845. Prince William of England did visit Placentia circa 1776 and donated a valuable communion set to the Anglican Church there. He became King William IV at the age of 65. The communion service is now at the Anglican Cathedral, St. John's.

Named for or location:  According to O'Neill in "The Story of St. John's:"
"In the summer of 1779 Governor Edwards took up residence in a house on Duke of York Street, sometimes also called Kenny's Lane.  The thoroughfare no longer exists but is is not difficult to place. It started on Duckworth Street, about fifty yards east of Cochrane Street, and ran northwest to a pathway that is now Gower Street.  The angle of Duke of York brought it out on Gower Street about fifteen yards east of Cochrane Street.  The lane disappeared after the 1892 fire, but the name is preserved in York Street, a new street created to intersect the old."
